She was built for rendezvous, red wine, and the kind of quiet confidence that lingers with a hint of je ne sais quoi. AC? Naturally. Double garage? Obviously. Corner lot? Don't act surprised, she likes to be seen. She wears 1244 square feet like a red dress at midnight, fitted in all the right places, with vaulted ceilings that hint at the high life and a U-shaped kitchen where more than meals get cooked up. The pantry's generous, the layout's confident, and the vibe? Immaculate. Upstairs, she offers three bedrooms, including a primary suite that doesn't shy away from attention, flaunting a walk-in closet and a three-piece ensuite with extra storage for your best-kept secrets. Downstairs, she doubles the danger: two more bedrooms, a full bathroom, and a sprawling family room dressed in modern tones and fresh baseboards. Positioned near the French school and a playground, she's got a soft spot for families… but don't let that fool you. She's got backbone, presence, and just enough edge to keep things interesting. She's the kind of home you don't see coming—and by the time you've fallen for her, it's already too late.
